

Planned Giving

Planned giving is a strategy that helps donors maximize the personal benefits of their charitable giving, and allows them to make extraordinary gifts possible. Gift or estate planning enables donors to integrate generosity with tax planning to attain mutually beneficial outcomes. This type of charitable commitment typically comes from a donor's assets rather than their income and can be made outright or deferred.

Through careful planning and advantageous state and federal tax laws, it is possible to reduce or virtually eliminate income taxes such as capital gains, and transfer taxes including estate and inheritance taxes. Planned giving is a long-term development strategy that will maintain the legacy of giving created through the SVS® Foundation.

There are several benefits to remembering the SVS Foundation in your estate plan. With both immediate and long-term fiscal advantages, the SVS Foundation Legacy Society can offer you creative and innovative ways of protecting your assets.

- Reduce your income, capital gains (possibly avoiding), and/or estate taxes
- Increase current income for you and other family members
- Retain control of your assets now and reducing estate taxes in the future
- Have the peace of mind that you are protecting your family's financial security while helping fund a cause close to you
- Pass assets to family members at a reduced tax cost
- Make a significant charitable gift to the SVS Foundation
- Take advantage of a program that offers mutually beneficial outcomes for SVS Foundation and you

How do I Make a Planned Gift?

There are numerous ways in which you are capable of making a planned gift and the mechanism should be tailored based on your personal situation. Planned gifts may be donor directed. If you have a specific interest in research or education, the SVS Foundation will restrict your gift for the appropriate use. SVS Foundation advises that you seek legal counsel from your estate attorney if you believe a planned gift is right for you.

Donor Recognition Program

The SVS Foundation Planned Giving Program is a visionary initiative established to provide an alternative giving mechanism for its constituents. Individuals making planned gifts to SVS Foundation will be recognized in an appropriate manner. To acknowledge their visionary support, donors will receive:

- Special designation in the SVS Foundation Annual Report
- Recognition through promotion of members at the Vascular Annual Meeting
- Invitations to all SVS Foundation donor activities and events
- Annual acknowledgments in SVS publications
